

AN INDEX OF REFERENCES TO DARTMOOR
AND ITS BORDERS CONTAINED IN THE
"TRANSACTIONS," VOLS. I TO XXX.

BY ARTHUR B. PROWSE, M.D., F.R.C.S.

(Read at Princetown, 20 July, 1905.)

At Ashburton, in July, 1876, a "Dartmoor Committee" was appointed by this Association. A year later, at Kingsbridge, the first report of this provisional committee, making certain valuable recommendations, was read, and a standing committee was appointed to carry them out. One of the proposals was that a map of Dartmoor (on a scale of six inches to a mile) should be prepared, on which everything of importance could be entered; and in the third report (1879) it was recorded that considerable progress had been made with the map.

At the same time it was decided that for the purposes of the Committee "Dartmoor shall be regarded as consisting, inclusively and exclusively of the entire parishes of Ashburton, Belstone, Bovey Tracey, Bridestowe, Bridford, Buckfastleigh, Buckland-in-the-Moor, Buckland Monachorum, Chagford, Cornwood, Dean Prior, Drewsteignton, Gidleigh, Harford, Holne, Ilsington, Lamerton, Lustleigh, Lydford, Manaton, Mary Tavy, Meavy, Moretonhampstead, North Bovey, Okehampton, Peter Tavy, Sampford Spiney, Shaugh Prior, Sheepstor, Sourton, South Brent, South Tawton, Tavistock, Throwleigh, Ugborough, Walkhampton, Whitchurch, and Widcombe-in-the-Moor."

Up to 1883 the Committee continued to exist, although no reports were issued after 1879; and no further reference was made to the progress of the map, which, if still in existence, should be of considerable interest and value to us now, even though it be a quarter of a century old.

Ignorant of this early topographical effort, when in 1901 I read a paper to this Association, I advocated a careful survey of the moor, and the recording on a map of the same scale all the antiquities found.

Judging by the number of papers contributed between 1866 and 1898, there seems to have been no lack of interest in the moor, even after the cessation of the Committee's influence and stimulus; and I, in common with many others, have often wished there was an index to the manifold references to the moor in the Society's "Transactions."

Several years ago I sketched out a plan for a comprehensive index to the whole contents of the first series of thirty volumes, and made a beginning, but soon found that on the proposed plan the work was far too great to be undertaken by any one man, unless he could devote his whole time and energy to it for many months.

Early this year I decided to work on an area limited to Dartmoor and its borders, choosing a plan mainly topographical, as likely to be of more practical value than any other. The parishes included are those enumerated by the Dartmoor Committee in 1879, together with Brentor, Hennock, and Plympton; and these are all shown upon the accompanying sketch-map, with the position of the parish church in each.

The boundary of the Forest is that claimed by the Duchy of Cornwall at the present time, which, it will be seen, corresponds very closely in most places with that suggested by me in 1892 (Vol. XXIV) as the ancient boundary. The bounds of the four "Quarters" of the Forest are also those now recognized by the Duchy.

In the Index each locality mentioned occurs in its own proper alphabetical sequence, together with its approximate position, shown by the name of the parish, or the initial letter of the quarter of the moor in which it is situated following it within brackets; but in the case of a stream, the name within the brackets is that of the river into which it falls.

A considerable number of alternative spellings is given, together with cross references when necessary: and as the number of entries under some names, especially those of parishes, is very large, these have been classified, to facilitate inquiry, under the following heads, which appeared best suited to the requirements of the case:—Archæology, including also Heraldry, Numismatics, etc.; Bibliography; Biography, Pedigrees, etc.; Botany; Etymology; Fine Arts; Folklore, Superstitions, etc.; Geology; History; Laws and Customs; Language, including rare words, phrases, etc.; Manufactures, Industries, etc.; Meteorology; Mining and Minerals; Seis- mology; Statistics; Topography and Scenery; Zoology; and, finally, other subjects grouped under the heading Various.

Following this classified list of volume and page references in the case of each parish, comes an alphabetical list of all localities within the parish recorded in the Index.

I venture to hope that this Index may be of use to many students of this delightful part of dear old Devonshire; for it provides, to some extent at least, a ready means of reference to what has been recorded about any locality in the area covered; and, what is not unimportant in these busy times, will help to save some valuable time now lost in searching laboriously through the eighteen thousand pages in the first thirty volumes of our "Transactions."
